Hopatcong, NJ – Hopatcong High School

Title- Hopatcong High School FEA Students team up with Habitat for Humanity

Cynthia Randina, Hopatcong Superintendent of Schools, Announces –

The Future Educators teamed with Habitat for Humanity in Morristown this past Friday, April 29 and helped build a house. They tiled, "stuccoed" around the house and did other odds and ends around the site. The students learned various different skills and safety tips while helping with the various jobs on the construction site. Shayla Gray said "it wasn't as easy as it seemed but knowing that we were helping a family less fortunate was worth the hard work." Roseann Cid said "it was a lot of fun and I learned a lot about what it takes to build a house." Valerie Chaverra believes that everyone should try this at least once. Overall the students finished the day feeling inspired and motivated to help others. Working with Habitat for Humanity was a wonderful opportunity. We are looking forward to volunteering again!
